

---

Subject: Duplicate email probs OUTLOOK2K

Posted by grizzly on Thu, 01 Sep 2005 18:34:03 GMT

View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

---

Hi, I have the software checking two pop3 accounts in Outlook, and adding the word "SPAMASSINATED" to the messages that get flagged as junk.

Its working great, albeit a bit slow, but works!

But, I have a message rule in Outlook that says to MOVE the message to a spam folder if that word is detected in the subject line. Well, instead of moving, it is copying the junk. So I still have to manually delete it out of the folder with the good email.

I 've messed with the Outlook rules but can't force it to work right. Is this an Outlook problem, or a NST bug / feature? The message rules are straight forward for the most part, so I don't think I am missing anything obvious.

Thanks for any insight.

---