... and where did they go to? Please check your logs, maybe you can learn something there. (to turn on detailed logging see the FAQ list).

It might be that some spammer has chosen your mail address as the sender address, and now you get lots of non delivery reports you don't want. The log file will tell.

Well, my server was an open relay because of the following. I opened it as a relay for 127.0.0.1 because I wanted to send some mails directly from the server, but of course all NoSpamToday mails came from 127.0.0.1.
