Hello,

Does anyone know of a way to "easily" view the .msg files created with the Storage Filter... i.e. importing them into an email client or something similar?

opening one at a time with notepad just doesn't cut it ;)

Most mail clients (other than MS Outlook) are capable of doing this. The files are in plain simple MIME format, any mail client should be able to import them.

Once you have, for example, installed 'The Bat!', *.msg files are associated with the mail client, so you only have to double-click the message file.
