

---

Subject: External Filters

Posted by LorianNod on Mon, 13 Jul 2009 12:16:14 GMT

View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

---

Is there a library of 3rd part filters somewhere? I have some I could add that I've written, like SpoofedSender and ReecipentBlacklist.

Also, why can't I move my own custom filters to the top of the filter lists (it says because of performance reasons) but some of my filters are VERY lightweight?

thanks.

---

---

Subject: Re: External Filters

Posted by support on Mon, 13 Jul 2009 13:28:40 GMT

View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

---

LorianNod wrote:

> Is there a library of 3rd part filters somewhere? I have some I > could add that I've written, like SpoofedSender and > ReecipentBlacklist.

Please have a look at the CleanMail Contribution Area:

<http://www.byteplant.com/support/cleanmail/contrib.html>

> Also, why can't I move my own custom filters to the top of the > filter lists (it says because of performance reasons) but some > of my filters are VERY lightweight?

External filters always have the overhead of writing/reading the mail body to/from a file, which means that they need more resources than built-in filters like the attachment/DNSBL or delay filters. You can still put your own filters in any place by editing the cleanmail.cf file directly.

---